VOL. XI

NEWPORT, TENNESSEE, THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1911

(Eight Pages)

NO. 48

NEW GENERALS AND COLONELS

Gov. Hooper Names a Whole Lot of Them.

SCATTERED OVER STATE

And Even Far Off Texas Furnishes One of the Heroes in the Person of George M. Bailey, the wit of the Houston Post.

In announcing his official staff a pleasure, a privilege and a duty accorded the governor of Tennessee, the chief executive officer went out of his way to compliment the newspaper fraternity and appointed as colonel George M. Bailey, one of the brightest of all the bright paragraphers, doing duty on the Houston, Tex., Post.

Another recognition shown the newspaper men was the appointment of Alfred T. Sanford, of the Journal and Tribune, Knoxville, who was made brigadier-general of the quartermaster's department. Among the other chief officials, Gen. Maloney, the present adjutant-general, and Col. Fred H. Phillips, assistant adjutant-general, are present office-holders under Gov. Hooper.

Samuel L. Calhoun, commissioners-general, is a prominent insurance man of Memphis. Dr. James H. McCall, of Huntingdon, named as surgeon-general, is a member of the prominent republican family of that name of Carroll county. Gen. Clarence B. Stewart, inspector-general, is a manufacturer of Chattanooga, and Gen. John R. Walker, advocate-general, is a well known lawyer of Trenton.

AMONG THE COLONELS

Among the twenty colonels who blossom forth in the military circles of the State with that title, there are a number of prominently known gentlemen. George C. Taylor, the secretary of Gov. Hooper, must no longer be called "George" but "Col. Taylor." It will no longer be "Dick" for R. P. Naylor, of Springfield, but "Col. Naylor." Lee Brock will be fixed for life as "Colonel" also. Irby Bennett, of Memphis and "sometimes" Nashville, also falls in that list, as also does J. D. Torrey, the well-known Nashville insurance man.

Dr. Ira Landrith, of Nashville, who was one of the leading workers for the reform of Tennessee politics, becomes chaplain of the staff, with the rank of colonel.

Taken throughout, the list of the official family of Gov. Hooper comprises a splendid body of men and all representative in their advocation and in their particular section of the State. The governor has made a well distributed list and a happy division in the selection from independents and republicans.
